

I would like to urge you to not change the rules to the current net neutrality. Telcom's have historically done everything they could to maximize profits and at the expense of subscribers. When you are a chicken in the henhouse, you've got to be concerned about anything that the fox is taking out full page newspaper ads in support of.